

CONRAD OFF ON AFRICAN FLIGHT — William D. Edward (left) and Joseph G. Fabrick (right) St. Louis business men who founded the United Missionary Air Training and Transport group, say good-bye to Max Conrad as he was about to take-off from St. Louis to deliver this Cessna plane to Nairobi, Kenya. It will be used by the missionaries supported by UMATT in their work on the northwest frontier.

Conrad Flies to Africa, Delivers Missionary Plane

As part of a project of a new organization—UMATT—standing for United Missionary Air Training and Transportation, Max Conrad has delivered a plane from St. Louis to Nairobi, Kenya, East Africa.

Mr. Conrad flew a Cessna 206 Skywagon to Africa, where the plane will become part of a regularly scheduled airline service in the northern frontier district of Kenya. The planes there will carry food and medicine, doctors, nurses, agricultural advisors, relief program directors and others on their round in that isolated section.

While UMATT combines the programs of the Marianists (lay brothers and priests of the Society of Mary) the St. Patrick's Missionary Society and the Medical Missionaries of Mary, who are active in Kenya, it will support men of all faiths.

A small group of St. Louis business men, inspired by Bishop Joseph B. Houlihan of the Missionary Society, started in 1963 to bring help to 200,000 famine stricken nomads of the Turkhana Desert Area in northern Kenya. The Cessna follows an earlier effort when a Piper Cub plane was donated to Sister M. Michael Therese, "The Flying Nun" who used it in ministering to the Turkhana people.

Brother Michael Stimac S. M., who will be the full-time pilot in Africa, expects to meet Mr. Conrad in Rome and fly with him to Kenya. He will then take Mr. Conrad on a tour of the remote desert area. This is the first of three planes which will be donated.

In addition to the airlift program, UMATT also is sponsoring an expanded aviation program in a boys' school in Kenya where future African leaders are being trained in pre-flight, radio and other aviation topics.

Jobs Sought Here for Young People

Frank E. Harvey, manager of the local office of Pennsylvania's Bureau of Employment Security, today called on employers to "join the jobs-for-youth set" during June which Gov. William W. Scranton and Mayor Douglas H. Peddie here proclaimed June "Youth Opportunity Month".

"Some 900 youths aged 16 to 22 years will be entering the Lock Haven area labor market during the next 30 days," Mr. Harvey declared. "Approximately 500 will be high school graduates trying to find permanent employment while the other 400 will be high school students and graduates and college students seeking summer jobs which will enable them to continue their education."

The 900 youths expected to enter the labor force hereabouts are part of some two million boys and girls joining the nation's work force this spring. Pennsylvania anticipates about 200,000 youthful job seekers when the spring term ends in the commonwealth's high schools and colleges. At the end of May, there were 50,000 youths, aged 16 to 22, registered for jobs at the bureau's local offices.

Mr. Harvey pointed out that this is the year most of the "post-war baby crop" of the late 1940s are joining the labor force. Half of the nation's unemployed in June are expected to be in the 16 to 22-year-old group.

The situation is serious and only employers can make the difference between meaningful job experience of an idle summer," he asserted. "The discouragement of a jobless summer could lead to permanent frustration for these youngsters. In a period of general prosperity it would be a national disgrace to fail to help youth fit into the mainstream of our economy."

Mr. Harvey said employers should make every effort to arrange for a one per cent increase in their work force and to take on one or more extra trainees for every hundred employees this summer. He pointed out Gov. Scranton announced the state will employ some 1,200 youths in its parks and other facilities this summer.

PORCH REFRESHER

An easy-to-eat sponge cake that is just right on a warm day.

Nibble Tray
Swedish Sponge Cake Iced Tea
Swedish Sponge Cake
1½ cups unsifted regular flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup boiling water
¾ cup butter
3 large eggs
1 cup sugar
Grated rind of 1 large lemon

Grease a 2-quart fluted tube pan with 1 tablespoon butter; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon fine dry bread crumbs, shaking pan to distribute evenly.

On a piece of wax paper, stir together the flour and baking powder. Pour the boiling water into a small mixing bowl; add the butter; stir until melted; cool. In a medium mixing bowl, beat eggs until foamy; gradually beat in the sugar; continue to beat, if necessary, until ivory color. Add flour mixture, water mixture and lemon rind; beat gently just until blended. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a slow 325 degrees oven for 1 hour or until cake begins to pull away from sides of pan and tester inserted in center comes out clean. Loosen edges with a spatula; turn out on wire rack; cool.
