Anita Rose Performs Brilliantly In Amateur Three-Gaited Stake

By Brainard Platt

They say a walk-trot mare should perform like a debutante at her first ball and Anita Rose was anything but a wallflower at the Dayton Horse show last night.
With Kathy Lyda of Brockton, Mass., in the saddle, the eight-year-old performed with brilliance and precision in the amateur three-gaited stake.
She was just a bit skittish as a lady should be when she is doing her best to catch the eye of a man, Judge Edward Barham.
But then besides her natural talent, she had a lot going for her, as an enthusiastic crowd of 6,500 would attest.
Miss Lyda is not a novice, being a veteran of the show ring despite her youthful and very attractive 20 years.
Still bubbling, while she smoothed the display of flowers she and Anita Rose received for winning the $300 stake for three-year-olds ridden by an amateur, she explained:
"I have been around horses a long time, received my first lessons when I was 5 and started riding when I was 8. I still remember that it was a local show."
But local shows were not for long for this young lady, just graduated from Stephens college.
"I have been riding at this show since we joined up in 1960 with the Charles Crabtree stables out of Simpsonville, Ky.," she said.
"I have two horses here, Anita Rose, plus a five-gaited mare,

Husband-Wife Team Off To Nairobi On Flying Peace Corps Mission

By Harold Davis
Journal Herald Staff Writer
Riding pilot George Raymond relaxed in the University of Dayton's Stuart hall lounge this week and discussed his upcoming "flying peace corps" mission to Nairobi, Kenya, East Africa.
Emblazoned in blue lettering on his white windbreaker were the letters UMATT—the mission George and his wife, Helen, a secretary, will represent.

George Raymond and wife, Helen ... Africans Can Build On What We Leave Them

"THIS IS ONLY the beginning of this great project ... the ground floor," George said. "The air missionary work program in Nairobi is the first target. Others are already scheduled for India, East New Guinea, Central and South America."
The UMATT (United Missionary Air Training and Transport) program is directed by Brother Thomas Dwyer, SM, with headquarters at the University of Dayton.
After just completing an eight-week orientation course at the University of Dayton in mission work of the Marianists, the Raymonds leave for their home in Los Angeles today.

denominational UMAAT program for George, an Episcopalian, and Helen, a Baptist, probably had its start last Christmas eve.
Heading for Bakerfield, Calif., in their helicopter, the Raymonds were forced low by a fog bank.
A rotor blade failed. They had no chance, George explains, and the plane crashed. "It ended up in a mess," he said. "We had no business walking away from it, but we did."
Escaping with only minor injuries and spared their lives, the Raymonds believed they owed a lot to someone. They wanted to pay that someone back.
Later on, George saw a news item about the work of UMATT. With a background in supply and support, he thought he could help out. So he wrote to find out more. After being accepted, he and Helen enrolled in the summer institute at the University of Dayton.
"After taking the course,

Once, they sell their home, distribute their furniture between grandchildren and storage, they will plane about Sept. 1 for the grassy plateaus and thorn trees of the East African nation.
There, the Raymonds will do their part in providing what George calls "a much needed communications service" linking remote missions and stations in Kenya with all East Africa and the outside world.
"It doesn't pay to build highways or bridges over there," George said. "Flying is the only way to get around ... the only way to open up the country."
Raymond, who has more than 1,500 flying hours to his credit, explained it is the hope of missionaries to provide an airline so small planes can be used to carry food and medicine, doctors, nurses and agricultural advisors on their appointed rounds in the roadless terrain.

"I'm not nearly as apprehensive as I was when we first signed up," Helen said. "Of course, George was all for it from the beginning. But not me. I thought we'd be living in a mud hut in some African jungle."
BUT ACTUALLY the Raymonds learned Nairobi is a modern city with supermarkets, taxis and numerous other modern conveniences.
Leaders in the UMATT movement, including Brother Michael Stimac, SM, who has been in Kenya since 1962 and formerly taught high school in Cleveland, feel the effectiveness of the Kenya project will convince the United States utility and agricultural aviation should be utilized in our foreign assistance program.
"All of us are not going to homestead Africa," George said. "We're just going to do our job ... to get them started. The Africans can build on what we leave them."

"WHEN IT RAINS over there, everything turns into a quagmire," Raymond said. "A plane can get from one location to another in an hour or so, while it takes four or five weeks by car."
The Raymonds said they probably will be in Nairobi for some time, though they don't know how long.

Sender, Walkie-Talkie In Suspect Car 2 Charged In Theft At Franklin Inn

By Martha Edmiston
Journal Herald Staff Writer
LEBANON, O. — Two area men yesterday were charged with burglary of Hilltop tavern near Franklin where a cash register was tapped and a safe battered almost open.
Suspects are Sammy R. Robbins, of 6580 Stevens street, Milanburg, and Gary Lee Williams of 21 Weller road, Centerville, both 19 years old.
They were apprehended in the tavern at 3:30 a.m. by Dep. Fred Collett of the Warren county sheriff's department aided by Franklin police.
A third man, Ralph Sexton, 24, of RR 1 Clarksville also is being held for investigation. Sexton was picked up in his car, parked on a roadside nearby.
The Sexton car, towed to Cook's Body Shop here, yesterday revealed unique contents. Sheriff's Capt. Roy Wallace and Collett discovered a pair of "walkie-talkies" and a radio sending station on citizens band frequency.
Wallace said he believes the instruments could have been used to communicate if the Sexton car was used in get-away. A copy of a national mechanics magazine was on the car seat and a tape recorder also was found.

Officers said Sexton, an aircraft mechanic, told them he was interested in radio.
Deputy Collett found a bag with $20 lying beside the safe when he arrested Robbins and Williams. Collett said the safe had the combination punched out and it had been worked on with hammers and chisels.
Collett "was on the roof of the IGA store at Carlisle" when the call came for the Hilltop tavern. He had noted a ladder by the building and climbed to the roof to investigate.
A neighbor, unidentified by the deputy, heard noise in the tavern and called the sheriff's department.
