

New Jordanian Cabinet Favors Ties With UAR

By ERIC PAGE
(C) New York Times Service
BEIRUT, Lebanon — King Hussein of Jordan installed a new cabinet Saturday led by a premier who favors close cooperation with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

The king also created the post of minister for religious affairs and holy places for Sheikh Abdel Hamid al-Sayeh, the Islamic dignitary who was expelled from Jerusalem last month by Israeli authorities.

AUTHORITATIVE Arab observers here said the government change, which was announced by Amman radio, signaled closer working relations with the Soviet Union as well as with the UAR.

The new premier, Bahjat al-Talhouni, replaces Saad Juma, who favored close ties with the United States and is said to have looked askance at Jordan's recent rapprochement with Moscow.

RESIGNING less than 48 hours after the king's return from his first visit to the Soviet Union, Jumaa said in a letter to him that present circumstances called "for re-evaluating the situation in order to confront Israeli threats." Jumaa, a conservative, had been in office since April 23 of this year.

Usually reliable sources in Beirut have reported that the Soviet Union and UAR have promised to back the king in efforts to get United Nations Secretary General Thant to frame a settlement between the Arab countries and Israel that would entail an end to the state of belligerency in exchange for Israel's withdrawal from occupied Arab territories.

IN A POLICY statement broadcast Saturday, the king said the Arabs sought "peace based on justice." He called for the return of Jerusalem to Jordan.

This demand was underscored by the Sheikh's appointment to the new 18-man cabinet.

Once the ranking Islamic judge in Jerusalem the Sheikh was expelled, according to Israeli officials, for leading opposition to their rule.

TALHOUNI, who is 62 years old, had been wielding growing power recently from his post as personal representative of the king. His being named premier merely formalized his position as the most powerful man in the regime.

GLOBE-GIRDLING JERRIE, FLYING GRANDPA
Gerrie Mock and Max Conrad Ride to Festival

HERE FOR UMATT

Gerrie, Grampa Could Ring Earth Together

By DENNIS SHERE
Daily News Staff Writer
Aviatix Gerrie Mock of Columbus showed no outward traces of her harrowing auto accident in July.

She broke into a broad smile as the audience applauded, then stepped to the microphone and said:

"... I just hope there isn't someone here who doesn't want to go up in the air, to look down and see the world below."

THEN IT WAS Max Conrad's turn to speak. He turned and surveyed the "Sing Out Dayton" ensemble standing behind him.

"You know," he told the audience, "really my first love is music. I just try to make a living flying..."

Gerrie, the only woman ever to fly solo around the world in a single engine plane, and Max, the famous "Flying Grandfather," came to Dayton Saturday to stump for Wings for Peace-UMATT.

They appeared at the Dayton-based "Flying Peace Corps" flea market at Wampers.

UMATT, United Missions Air Training and Transport, is pulling all stops in an effort to raise $7,000 to pay insurance premiums for six planes operating in East Africa.

According to Jane Hamilton, vice-president of the organization, the money must be raised by Nov. 1 or the planes will be grounded.

Both Gerrie and Max have a deep interest in the UMATT project and took time from busy schedules to be here.

"WHEN YOU FLY OVER those countries (in Africa) and realize how people are separated in the bush, you know how difficult it is to bring civilization to them," Gerrie explains.

"You have to have little airplanes to get from place to place."

Gerrie is devoting "seven days a week" writing a book about her flight around the world. She hopes to pilot either UMATT's seventh plane to Africa or a twin-engine amphibious aircraft to a Catholic parish in New Guinea.

JERRIE, her son, daughter and mother-in-law escaped serious injury in July when their automobile went out of control on I-71 near Washington C.H. She suffered deep lacerations on the face, arms and legs.

Saturday she sparkled, laughing and smiling with visitors at the flea market. The spray of fall flowers she held matched her autumn, tweed suit.

Max, 65, with 10 children and 27 grandchildren, delivered an airplane to Nairobi for UMATT in 1965.

"THE TASK of reaching people in the remote bush lands of Africa seems so insurmountable," he said.

"But I have met people like Mike Stimac (president of UMATT) and others who are giving their lives for it. It's a cause worth fighting for."

Max, who writes songs as he flies, has made a record called "Flight Inspired Music."

Some admirers in "Sing Out Dayton" presented him with their album Saturday, but he wouldn't take it without paying for it.

HE CLAIMS HE is "fading out" as a pilot, stepping aside for younger flyers.

But Gerrie thinks otherwise. She would like to accompany Max on a pole-to-pole flight around the world.

Conrad said he is the closest he has ever been to winning approval for the flight.

He will be meeting with Navy officials in Washington, D.C., Monday. The Navy furnishes support for U.S. Antarctic operations and has previously refused to okay Conrad's request.

CONRAD said he wants to fly solo, but may have to add a navigator to get Navy approval.

The "Flying Grandfather" said he has been working off-and-on for five years to get permission. The flight would begin at Chicago, carry him across the South pole and over the Pacific and northern Canada to the North pole.

He feels "75 per cent sure" of getting a Naval okay.

The Faces of Virginia

Virginia's Mountain Country: Fall is a color carnival in Virginia. It's scarlet sumac, golden poplar, bronze oaks, foaming cider, ham-biscuits, fat pumpkins, football and antiques... mountain crafts, a hootenanny. White-tailed deer, baying beagles, a hunter's moon. The Virginia reel, a clamor of crickets, the pungent scent of woodsmoke. Autumn brings a happy glow to the faces of Virginia!
